D.C. Everest Area School District Parental Partnership

Parent Involvement

The partnership between home and school will be supported when:

- All stakeholders continually assess, plan, and implement strategies that build the partnership.
- Parents, teachers, and administrators guide overall program efforts and serve as a home-school partnership network.
- A set of basic principles is used to build home-school partnerships.
- The school climate is open, helpful and friendly.
- Communications with parents (whether about school policies and programs or about their own children) are frequent, clear and two-way.
- Parents are considered as partners in the educational process, with a strong role to play in their children's development in school.
- The District actively promotes partnerships with all families.
- The District encourages volunteer participation from parents and the community at large.
